

Prosopon School of Iconology

The Prosopon School of Iconology was founded by Russian Master Iconographer Vladislav Andrejev after his immigration to the United States. Over the years, Vladislav Andrejev's iconographic technique and teaching method have undergone development and standardization resulting in a distinct "school" of painting and interpretation which introduces students to the practice and theory of the ancient Christian art of icon-writing in the Byzantine-Russian tradition as well as a contemporary step in its living development.

Subsequently, Mr. Andrejev, his sons Dmitri and Nikita, and some of his other students, formally organized the Prosopon School of Iconology with the blessings of the hierarchs of the Orthodox Church of America.

The iconographic method of the School is characterized by a process in which a succession of steps are concrete and definite, as are the liturgical services of the Church. Although striving for a high artistic level, the focus of the icon-writer is nevertheless on personal spiritual discipline and growth within the guidelines of the Orthodox Church teaching, that Icons are the 'Gospel in light and color'. The Prosopon School welcomes inquiring students from all backgrounds.

Instructors

This fall we are privileged to have Vladislav Andrejev founder of the Prosopon School of Iconology. Born in St. Petersburg, Russia, he received a formal education in fine art when he became interested in religious art, which was impossible to express openly at that time in the Soviet Union. The search for deeper meaning in art and life led him to solitary travels in parts of the Russian wilderness, and to independent study of icon and fresco painting with a monk icon-writer. A prolific iconographer, immigrating to the United States in 1980, Mr. Andrejev has been teaching iconography in North America for more than 35 years, and during this time, a growing number of students have been introduced to this ancient Christian art.

Tatiana and Dmitrii Berestov are a family of iconographers, who started as students of the Prosopon School about 20 years ago—Dmitrii in Russia and Tatiana in the US. Tatiana, born in Moscow, Russia, started practicing iconography after her immigration to the US, where for many years she studied closely with Vladislav Andrejev. Later she became an iconography instructor, and worked on private and church commissions. Dmitrii, born in Makeevka, Ukraine, started his iconography path at the Iconography Skete in Russia, under direction of a former disciple of Vladislav Andrejev. Dmitrii participated in many iconography projects, working on iconostases, icons, board-making, and wood carving. Dmitrii and Tatiana met and were married in Guatemala, where they were working on the murals for The Holy Trinity Church. After completing this project, they moved to New York, where they currently live, teaching iconography and iconology in New York City and throughout the country, working on iconographic projects for churches and individuals.

For Whom:

This is a professional level workshop in traditional Byzantine-Russian iconography based in a living Orthodox spiritual tradition, but no previous experience, religious background, or training is assumed. While taught from an Orthodox perspective, the workshop is open to people of any faith.

The workshop, limited to 25 participants, will include previous students of the Prosopon School, professional iconographers, other professional artists or people with some art training, as well as people with little or no art training or background.

The workshop will consist of lectures on the theology, theory, and technique of iconography, demonstrations of painting in egg tempera medium and other technical procedures such as gold leaf technique, along with time for working and personalized instruction as needed.

The Icons

St. Andrei Rublev, an iconographer canonized as a saint, produced work that is often perceived as the ideal of Eastern Church painting and of Orthodox iconography. His images are deeply rooted in the traditions of the Church, incorporating Old Testament imagery and liturgical hymns and prayers. His depiction of the Archangel Michael is now maintained by the Tretyakov Gallery in Moscow.

Beginning/basic students: Everyone who has not previously completed a Prosopon School workshop, irrespective of background or experience, will be working on an image based on Rublev's Archangel Michael. Second timers will work on Archangel Gabriel. Those who have completed the above two but not yet comfortable writing the complex image done by advanced students will discuss images with the instructors.

All materials—a gessoed board, paint materials, brushes, a palette, and gold leaf—and tools will be provided. No preparation is expected before the workshop begins. You may want to bring a desk lamp, pen, notebook, coffee/tea cup, and a cloth to cover your icon. Basic students should return home with a completed icon.

Note: For various reasons, the icon produced will vary somewhat from the image on the brochure.

Advanced students will be writing St. Elijah. Technical emphasis will be working on the figure as well as various scenery elements in a single icon. The drawing and other details will be sent to you upon registration.

Preparation to be done by advanced students before arriving include obtaining your own board, transferring the image, drawing the lines, completing the clay surface for gilding, and gilding the halo. You may choose your own board size. Vladislav will demonstrate on 17"X21" (14.5"X17.5" inner dimensions) board. Two possible places to obtain boards are <http://iconboards.com/index.php?cid=43> and <https://www.stjohnsworkshop.com/product/iconboards/> (must be gessoed, rectangular, and larger boards need braces).

Advanced students will probably find it helpful to bring their own tools and pigments, etc.

Tuition: $790

Reservations will be made in order of $200 deposits received (refundable until Sept. 15, 2018). Remainder due the first night of class. (Advanced students: tuition will be adjusted $100 for obtaining your own board.)

Tuition does not include accommodations. Those in need of accommodations may want to check the following: <http://www.stmarysoca.org/iconstay>

Prosopon classes fill quickly. A limited amount of funds may be available for partial scholarship. Inquire of Marilyn Johnson.

Meals: Snacks and lunch (Mon – Fri) will be provided. (Participants will help with meal cleanup.)
